Rhema Group provides online Learning and Development Resources to speed up creation of Personal Development Materials.

Rhema Group is now able to make available a vast library of learning resources accessible by employees at all levels using their organisation's intranet. Materials are available in a downloadable format and include checklists, process guides, forms/templates, diagnostics and questionnaires which are designed to support individual growth and development. The learning objects can also be used as valuable on-the-job aids.

Topics covered include:

- Leadership and Management Skills
- Change Management
- Performance Management
- Talent Development
- Personal Effectiveness
- Team Building
- Interpersonal Skills

Altogether there are 20 different topic areas and over 100 learning objects which are currently available. These learning objects can also be SCORM "wrapped" for inclusion in e-learning programmes.

Jeremy Francis, Rhema Group, Managing Director comments - "We see many organisations rapidly moving towards the offering of a library of learning resources via their intranets in order to deliver highly effective and cost saving personal development solutions.

Our materials can be used as part of longer term personal development plans, as on-the-job aids or as "just in time" training tools. They can also be used to support coaching activities.

Already we are seeing great demand for this new service which is now very much a part of our core offering to clients".
