

INFORMATION

Date: March 2007

Rhema Group welcomes Carol Bentley as its specialist adviser on Teacher Development

As part of its move into the Education Sector Rhema Group is pleased to announce that Carol Bentley will be taking on the role of specialist adviser on Teacher Development.

Schools in the UK today face a fast and radically changing environment which will involve them embracing new physical surroundings, leading edge ICT, a fresh approach to delivering new curricula and partnership working within school clusters for longer term sustainability. With her extensive experience as a secondary school teacher, and as a Deputy Head Teacher, Carol is well placed to advise Rhema Group on its training and consultancy offerings to schools.

Carol will act as a co-ordinator and liaison between Rhema Group, Local Authorities, School Clusters and Individual Schools to create the Leadership and Change Management Programmes required by teachers at all levels to take on the challenges they face.

Rhema Group MD Jeremy Francis commented – “Having worked predominantly in the corporate sector we believe that many of the issues which schools face are similar to those of any enterprise needing to achieve long term success in a rapidly changing world. Carol’s guidance and advice will be invaluable to us as we seek to create teacher development solutions which will really make a difference to teachers in the changing world of 21st century education. We have great pleasure in welcoming her to the Rhema team.”

Carol Bentley added – “Having attended a Rhema Group workshop on Leading and Managing Change I could immediately see the benefits they could deliver in the area of emotional intelligence for senior teachers like myself. I look forward to working with them to bring their insights to a wide population of schools which I know will derive considerable benefits from their programmes.”

For further information and interviews contact Terri Anderson

T: + 44 1494 565864

M: + 44 7802 872346

E: hq@rhemagroup.com

Notes to Editors

The Rhema Group www.rhemagroup.com is a highly respected and well-established UK human resource development company which also operates globally. Founded in 1985 by MD Jeremy Francis, Rhema (a name derived from the Greek for inspired word) has won a solid reputation for innovation, quality and reliability of delivery of people development and performance.

Focusing on Talent Development, Management Development, Performance Management, Customer Service and Selling Skills, Rhema provides on a 24/7 basis customised and blended solutions involving business consultancy, assessment/psychometrics, training, coaching, software and E-learning (via internet and client intranets).

Rhema Group includes a roster of talented and experienced UK consultants, and through 25 international partners of best practitioner status in Europe, USA, South Africa, Australia and S.E. Asia, Rhema delivers proprietary products and services globally in a variety of languages – in particular to multinationals looking for high quality, customised and consistent international roll-out of centrally mandated people development programmes and assessments. Clients include Microsoft, Société Générale, Reed Business Information, BOC Group, International Financial Data Systems, Institution of Civil Engineers and leading Dutch vendor lease organisation De Lage Landen.